STEPS TO PLANNING THE ULTIMATE BUCKS NIGHT

So you've been given the sacred duty of planning your mate's bucks party. Bucks Parties are always a fun night, but don't kid yourself, they can be a nightmare to plan! Here are some top tips for making sure you bring you're A-game to the party and pull off the ultimate bucks night.

1. SPEAK TO THE GROOM ABOUT THE GUEST LIST

Make sure to organize a complete written guest list for the event. If it's possible (without ruining a surprise) get the groom to contribute to ensure you don't miss anyone important. This can also be a great opportunity to consider the budget of everyone who will be invited, whether or not they will contribute, and what you are willing/expected to spend.

2. GET THEIR CONTACT DETAILS AND CREATE A GROUP CHAT

Once you've locked down the guest list, get a hold of phone numbers or handles and create a messaging group to keep in touch with everyone. This will become very important as your plans firm up down the road.

3. PICK A DAY THAT SUITS THE GROOM AND AS MANY GUESTS AS POSSIBLE

This might sound basic but it's not as simple as it seems. You need to leave enough time between the bucks night and the actual wedding that allows for comfort for the wedding party, especially the bride and groom. We think 4 weeks is a good amount of time to have an epic night, but then allows the groom to focus on preparing for the actual wedding. Sit down with the groom and work out which dates might work best. If there is a hens being planned, you might want to consider organizing the hens and bucks parties on the same night, so no one is left at home feeling miserable.

If possible, it's good to get some dates from the significant attendees before you settle on the date. The last thing you want is for someone important to be absent, so it does pay to check in with attendees. But keep in mind you'll probably give yourself the best chance of success with at least 6 weeks to plan.

4. GROOMSMEN ASSEMBLE!

You might be the best man, but you have a team of able-bodied assistants in the form of the groomsmen. Don't be afraid to ask them to help you out. They should also want the night to be memorable, so delegate. Get them involved and give them tasks to complete.

5. BUDGET

It's boring but it's unfortunately important. Get an idea from the groom and the guests of what kind of money they will be ok spending. The last thing you want is to book a crazy weekend only to find some guests can't get on board because of money. And equally, you don't want to book something smaller when people are expecting more. So it's good to have a frank conversation about that early on.

6. GET THAT CASH AND BOOK THE BASH

Once you know what you want, and you have the guest list, you can get cracking and put things into motion. Make sure to take real money from the guests, even if just for deposits. Don't get stuck with the bill all by yourself. It's important not just for your own finances, but so you know that all your guests really intend on coming. Crucially, don't forget to get in touch with us to book your poker bucks party with some gorgeous ladies at one of these amazing locations.

7. KEEP THE CREW IN THE LOOP

Even if you have a Whatsapp or Facebook group, keep reminding the guests that the big night is coming up. If there's anything they need to prepare or do beforehand, give your guests multiple reminders across the weeks leading up. And also give everyone plenty of notice about the costs and the time involved so you don't get drop outs late in the game.
